SHANE ATKINSON IS IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF TARENTINO AND INSPIRED BY COHEN'S BROTHERS WITH "LAROY" FEATURE

Shane's first feature film, "LaRoy" was unanimously praised, with its dramatic comedy, was also awarded the Audience Prize and the Critics' Prize and the Grand Jury Prize chaired by Guillaume Canet, who when he announced, shortening the moment of suspense with the phrase "Who the Fuck is LaRoy" from the film. "This film is quite admirable. When we see the mastery, the writing, the direction, the direction of the actors, it was obvious that this film deserved a Grand Prix", very naturally tells us why the Grand Jury was I agree for this reward for the film LaRoy.

Shane Atkinson, who is starting out in the world of cinema, is off to a very strong start with this triple prize, with a film whose script and direction are meticulously well put together like a set of Russian dolls where the Marousha fit together perfectly in a randomly tasty sequence. In the style of a modern and intelligently funny western, carrying an existential message, Shane Atkinson has created a film with a new style, following in the footsteps of Quentin Tarentino and with the relaxed and talented style of the Cohen brothers.

His young French producer, Sebastien Aubert, producer proudly revealed, and this is the magic of festivals, during our stay here in Deauville, "I am announcing to you that ARP has decided to distribute our film, and will therefore be released in theaters in April 2024"

"There were 22 days of filming for a budget of $2 million. That's very low for American cinema." he added.

Shane Atkinson, moved by such a standing ovation, and who received thunderous applause and cries of joy from the audience, even cried with joy at the announcement of his first prize, that of the public. In fact he couldn't hold back his tears. "What must have moved him is that both the public and the critics and the grand jury unanimously appreciated his smile, proof that his film is a heart-touching success. both critics with a discerning and professional eye and the public, layman, cinephile.

THE CRITIC JURY, is made up of five journalists, and awarded its Prize to the film "LAROY" by Shane Atkinson

The President of the Critical Jury, for her part, explained the reasons for choosing the film LAROY for this award:

"We had to choose between four films, for this critic's prize and as it is not possible to divide or make an ex aequo choice, we have the film that gives us the most pleasure. As said Hitchcock "A film is not a slice of life, it's a slice of cake", you have chosen LAROY, a comedy, maybe even a thriller.

Shane Atkinson who directed "LAROY" fut quant a lui débride d'emotion, des la deuxième annonce de prix pour son film, il a peur de joie et confesse " when I starlette sending video tapes, I was not even sure I coule be able to make the movie, and here I am here...I'm so thrilled, and thank you very much for this award and thanks to Deauville American Film Festival, for having me here, as an Indie movie, that I directed with very low budget. This festival is one f kind. I'm amazed to see people lining up in the morning at 10 am, working days, to watch movies. We did lots of post editing in France,with Adastrafin a French Production based in Cannes "
